Nashville, Ga., January 26.—(Special.)—Bonds for a system of paved highways in Georgia were indorsed by those present at the annual meeting here of the Nashville chamber of commerce when references were maded to the proposed bond issue to come before the extra session of the legislature.

Among the projects boosted at the meeting was the issue of $50,000 high sochool bonds to be voted upon here on January 30. Many speeches were sudered by former Senator Walsh, Massachusetts democrat, who was an anti-league democrat during the Wilson administration. Before the court issue became acute Butler's friends were concerned over Walsh's political strength in Massachusetts. The procount vote of Butler will give him additional campaign ammunition. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, must face the opposition of the La Follette forces which are anti-court. His remomination is very much in doubt between the extra session of the legislature.

Reed Leads Fight. When the final provision of the swanson resolution came before the senate there was good fighting, led by Senator Reed, of Missouri. That provision looks to it that the protocol and statute of the court shall not be so construed as "to require the United States to depart from its traditional policy of not intruding upon interering with, or entangling itself in the solitical questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state; for shall adherence to the said prococol and statute be construed to imply a relinquishment by the United States of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions."

Senator Reed's response was that before "bye and bye" could come "gag rule" otherwise cloture,—had shut off further thorough debate.

Senator Caraway, democrat, of Arkansas, took the same position as to "gag" rule that Senator Reed did, but was not fighting mad about it for he said:

FAVOR SALARY BOOST FOR SMOKE INSPECTOR

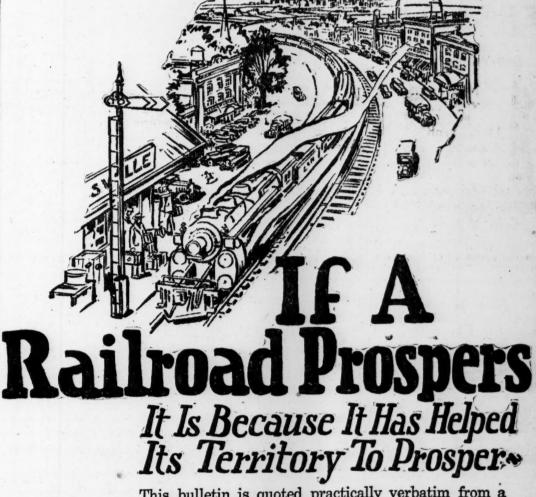

Resolutions recommending the favorable consideration of the mayor and city council for an increase in salary to $200 for the city smoke inspector were passed at a meeting of salary to $200 for the city smoke in-spector were passed at a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Monday. The resolutions declared that smoke conditions in Atlanta are proving detrimental to health, social and business conditions and that other cities have remedied such conditions.

This bulletin is quoted practically verbatim from a recent advertisement published by the Western Electric Company. It is built around facts and tells its message in a way which should interest you:

"Railroad ties! Stretching far and wide, they help to tie the nation in closer bonds.

Florida gets its daily bread from Western wheat fields: Oregon woodsmen keep warm with Massachusetts woolens, and Southern cotton-delivered by rail; the Iowa wheat belt seeks shelter under Oregon and Alabama lumber-brought across the country by rail; the Maine trapper sweetens his coffee with Louisiana sugar-transported by rail; the smokers of the nation fill their pipes with Kentucky and Tennessee-grown tobaccos-transported by rail.

This is more than a job of fetching and carrying. It is a process that changes sectional wealth into national welfare. It is a work that intimately links the well-being of the people with the well-being of the railroads-for if a railroad prospers it is because that railroad has helped its territory to prosper.

Observe how this works out. The railroad in good financial condition is able to attract capital for improving its facilities. Then more freight can be handled. Crops can be moved faster. Business in general speeds up. Everybody benefits. For adequate transportation is essential to national prosperity. It comes down to this. Now that many of the roads are beginning to earn a fair return, let us recognize that this is a good thing for the nation at large, because their financial soundness will enable them to render a satisfactory service today and to build for our growing transportation needs of tomorrow."

THE EDWARDS BILL.

Representative Fawards, of the first district, is to be warmly com mended for his efforts, through proposed legislation, to have the boll weevil exterminated. He has introduced a bill, which, according to press dispatches, provides "That the secretary of agriculture in conjunction with the various state authorities concerned, is hereby authorized and directed to inaugurate a paign to exterminate the boll weevil in the cotton-producing states, such felt in Atlanta, where his fine servcampaign to be conducted by zoning the infested territory, and otherwise as in the opinion of the secretary of agriculture is wise and best.

paratively, in Georgia in 1924 and also in 1925, but weather conditions were responsible and not that the weevils are showing any inclination to "pass on," or to yield to annihilation. The fact is, the United States department of agriculture announces that there are to feed the people row in Florida. more weevils in hibernation in and with this wonderful market for Unfortunately extermination seems to be impossible, just as the extermination of many other insects is impossible, as demonstrated by long experiments.

On the other hand, the weevil can be kept down, and individual farmers can materially reduce the infestation on their own farms by eliminating, in the fall, as much as possible, the haunts for hibernation. That is, by keeping the fields clean, the fences clean, and by keeping the cotton acres away from connecting woodland, and, at all times, well drained.

The government has never been able to exterminate the malariabearing mosquito, and yet sections that used to be malaria-ridden have been made healthy by reducing the infestation, through drainage, the elimination of standing water,

The weevil problem is up to the cotton farmers. The control is no longer a serious problem. Intensive cultivation-better farming on less acreage to the plow-good seed beds, liberal fertilization and the use of poison intelligently at the right time, will make more cotton to the acre, other conditions being normal, than under the old pre-weevil system of 20 acres to the plow, and-too often-lazy, indifferent cultivation. The weevil has taught some valuable lessons. It has served in the establishment of better systems of balanced agriculture-in the growing of food and feed at home and in the finding of other than cotton money crops. At the same time weevil infestation has cost the cotton farmers incalculable sums through the destruction of their crops. If extermination is possible then by all means let's do itbut we fear the Edwards measure would only serve to build up great field organizations at taxpayers' ex- a monopoly of the spots on it. penses, without any practical results of a constructive nature.

No doubt this old superstitious as sociation of bad smell with disease so ret thereat of disease accounts for the popularity of the motion that an antiseptic is indicated by foul breath At any rate, that powerful aroma, suggesting an accident in the barbet shop or a house cleaning at the drug store, so noticeable in the Wisen-heimer environment nowadays, is probably the disguise used to overcome anybody who might otherwise suspect the Wisenbeimer's breath.

The average unsophisticated customer wouldn't pay you two cents for a large bottle of liniment or a hospital size package of salve that had no odor. In order to move the goods you simply, mbus make 'emismel nice or impressive. This is a trade sceret which the manufactures of popular antiseptic preparations understand very well. Even in colleges and schools, yea, even in some badly conducted hospitals, where professional integrity bends a little under the pressure of commercial agression, one finds high priced stinks substituted for soap and water or simple cleanliness.

A very good doctor using a con-spicuous but worthless "antiseptic" pleaded, when taken to task about it, that although he was fully aware the stuff was useless he dared not defy the popular demand that such an "an-tiseptic" be conspicuously employed under the circumstances. Not until one has experienced the ruthlessne of that popular demand will the doc-tor's defense of his practice seem rea-sonable. But I do not see how a railroad company or a municipality can offer such a plea in extenuation of the sheer waste and extravagance of the stink business. Wherever one encounters a "sanitary" stink pot at work two questions naturally arise: First, is it a case of utter incompetence and unfitness of the persons tence and unfitness of the persons Chopin Sketch

In a democracy the judiciary is an indispensable institution. The framing of a constitution of government may be the work of a few wise statesmen during a short period of days, and a few weeks only may be needed for its adoption by the people. The statutes of the state may be amended and multiplied by legislative assemblies from time to time as public demands may dictate. But the clear construction of the terms of the constitution and the final decision as to whether any statute is in accordance with, or violation of, the constitution must rest with the judiciary department of the state, or the nation.

Fulton Schools Held Among Best in South In Report of Auditor

Fulton county has one of the best county school systems in the south, according to Tom Wilson, state school auditor, who Tuesday made public his audit of the Fulton county school department books for 1925.

The cooperation of the county board of education and heads of the school system with Superintendent Jere Wells is responsible for the success of the system, according to Auditor Wilson. During the year $408,919.25 was spent for new buildings; $171,087.23 in white teachers' salaries; $18.448 in colored teachers' salaries. Total expenditures were $675,154.43 and respired to the salaries of t

FILM . . . the trouble Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film, a viscous coat that covers them. That film is an enemy to your teeth-and your gums. You must remove it. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy "off-color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea, and gum disorders. Old-time methods fail in successfully combating it. That's why, regardless of the care you take now, your teeth remain dullyour gums soft and toneless.

New methods remove it. And Firm the Gums

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has discovered effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it, then to firm the gums to healthy coral color.

To EVEN COUNT.

Athens, Ga., January 26.—(Special.)—Three defeats, in 11 starts, will be the record standing behind the Georgia Bulldogs as Tech is played here next Saturday night in Athens most colorful basketball game of the year.

One of the trio of losses sustained by this year's Red and Black quinted was at the hands of the Jackets, when, on their own court, victory over the Bulldogs read 35 to 30.

Fresh from victories over the South Carolina "Gamecocks" and North Carolina State last week, Coach Stegeman is busying the squad in preparation for the coming Tech affair. Monday no practice was held, but practice was renewed vigorously Tuesday afternoon, and no let-up will foll w the maining practice days this week.

Since the former game with Tech, Tulane, Washington and Lee, V. M.

Tech has divided two games this season with Tulane, lost to Auburn, defeated Marquette, and has lowered standards to Vanderbilt, Kentucky, and South Carolina. Both Georgia's and South Carolina. Both Georgia's and South Carolina was one point, the Bulldogs winning 26 to 25, and tech was trounced 26 to 20.

In 11 games the Bulldogs have ecored 512 points, for an average of slightly more than 46 points, per man. Captain Nolen Richardson, who is rounding out his career as a Red and Black cager, leads in in-dividual scoring with a total of 147 points. "Babe Florence, center, is second scoring ace with 134 points.

Harrell Huguley is nursing a wrenched knee, received on the Virginia invasion, and will not be ready for the Tech game. George Keen, in the dethe first part of the week with a cold, is expected to be ready by game time, though he is not in the best of condition.

Birmingham, Ala., January 26.—(Special.)—In one of the most torridly-fought contests ever staged on a Magic City floor, the Birmingham Athletic club basketball team defeated Atlanta Athletic club five at the B. with action.

Not until the middle of the second stanza were the locals able to draw away from their Georgia rivals and the count was neck and neck for the major part of the game. Joe Bean's men wound up the tilt in a desperate rally to overtake the scrapping Blues and the sideliners were treated to a terrific 10 minutes with both teams putting out everything in stock.

Skeebie Caldwell, star B. A. C. forward, sniped a basket to start the secoring within 30 seconds of the opening toot. The tallying was slow at the start with both teams waiting for opening before cutting loose at the drapery. The Atlantans took the lead once at 3.2 only to be overtaken shortly, but came back in front again at 8.7. Caldwell sank a beauty from the 10-foot line a moment after Stephens' goal had put the visitors ahead, however, and the locals never gave up the lead thereafter. The half-way point was reached with Atlanta in the midst of a rally and B. A. C. leading 16-15.\(\)

Newmann, local center, tipped in a two-pointer to start the second period and B. A. C. gradually began lengthening the lead, which reached its widest margin at 27-18. The late Jack Sheridan was a victim of one of Schaefer's pranks but it did not happen on the ball field and Sheridan discovered that he had been kidded several months afterward. In the wet days Joe Cantillon had a saloon in Chicago located on

The Voice Again.

Schaefer, who had reentered the barroom, kept watching Sheridan. As soon as he was sure Jack was again dozing, he returned to the garret. Once more the voice of Schaefer bellowed down the water pipe:

Spring passed and summer was well on its way. The heat of a July sun was baking the diamond and Sheridan, behind the bat, was having a tough afternoon. Up came Schaefer, Sheridan called the first one a strike. Schaefer stought it was a ball. Schaefer said nothing. The second ball looked wide to Schaefer but Sheridan called it a strike. Schaefer stepped back and bending toward Sheridan's ear yelled:

RANGE IN NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

New York, January 26 .- (A)-1 cotton market was lower today under comparatively small offerings, a par-little southern selling. Absorption of early offerings gave the market a very steady undertone, but prices eased during the afternoon under liquidation by early early early small selling orders from the south. May declined to 20.05 and October to 18.09 while July sold off to 18.87, net declines of 15 to 19 points. Trading was quiet during the entire day, and some brokers were inclined to think that failure of recent bullish futures to stimulate any general demand, was

MARKET IS QUIET AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, January 26 .- (A)-The New Orleans, January 26.—(AP)—The cotton market was a quiet affair today, trading being restricted to narrow proportions. The price trend was downward, although the selling was at no time aggressive. After opening 2 to 6 points down on lower cables than due, prices continued to ease off with only small rallies from time to time and reached the lowpoints near the end, the market closing at the bottom and showing net comparatively small offerings, a parently inspired by rumors of an easier spot basis in the south and relatively easy Liverpool cables. May sold off to 19.40 or 17 points net lower and closed at that figure, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 15 to 19 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 5 to 14 points owing to the easier ruling abroad, local and a little southern selling. Absorption of early offerings gave the market a tone.

that failure of recent bullish futures to stimulate any general demand, was as largely responsible for the decline as anything in the day's news.

Private cables attributed the ensier ruling of Liverpool to hedge selling and continental buying, but said there was a fair spot demand from spinners and exporters, also a reconsiderable in quiry for cotton cloths in Langashira.

Reports that recent rains and snows ad put the Texas soil into good contition may possibly have been a factor as a favorable feature from the ew crop standpoint.

The only information of real importance bearing upon the probabilities of the next crop is an announcement issued from Washington in which it is stated that more boll weevils are hibernating now than during any winter since 1915. This announcement appears to be based upon studies of weevil hibernation made at the experiment stations of agricultural department in the south.

It is explained that at Tallulah. La, where records have been kept since 1915, the number of live weevils found per ton of Spanish moss, a favorite hibernating place of the pest, was 280. Wilkes National Bank Buys Citizens' National At Washington, Ga.

Washington, Ga., January 26.—
(Special.)—By an agreement reached here, the Citizens National bank of Washington was sold to the National Bank of Wilkes, the latter bank assuming liabilities of the Citizens bank including the liability of depositors. All business of the two banks will be transacted in the future at the banking quarters of the National Bank of Wilkes, which bank long been recognized as one of the strongest and most progressive banks in Georgia.

The resources of the National Bank of Wilkes are said to be more than $1,000,000 and at the recent annual meeting a dividend of 12 per cent was declared to stockholders payable in quarterly instalments and a neat sum was passed to undivided profits account, representing one of the most satisfactory and most profitable year's business in the bank's history. The National Bank of Wilkes is capitalized at $50,000 with a surplus account of $115,000 and deposits of $700,000.

Officers of the bank are J. A. Moss, of the senate agriculture committee the senate agriculture committee, urging him to support an amend ment to the house Muscle Shoals bends to the house Muscle Shoals resolution to make it "sufficiently broad" to attract a large number of bidders.

The house resolution would create a joint congressional committee to negotiate bids for Muscle Shoals, but the bureau's proposed amendment would direct that the negotiations be centered primarily on proposals to production of power for distribution.

By agreement the resolution will come before the committee January 29, and Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, has announced he will insist on prompt action.

Dry Goods.

New York, January 26.—Cotton goods, trading in the gray goods division was quiet today with prices well maintained. More business came forward on wash fabrics. Rayon mixtures were active along with silk and cottons. Printers have booked the best business in weeks on percales and specialities for spring. Worsted dress goods of a sports character, and soft finished novelty treatment, were in good call for immediate shipment. The men's wear trade was quiet, awaiting the openings of next week. Raw silk was slightly higher on stronger cables from Yokohama. Silk taffetas, crepes and printed silks of many descriptions were active. Jobbers are receiving a flood of small orders from retailers who seek prompt shipments.

PRICES TAKE JUMP ON WHEAT MARKET

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Chicago, January 26.—Bullish sentiment prevailed in the wheat market selling prices advanced readily with a star way and with a lack of aggressive selling prices advanced readily with way at the top, $1.74 5-8 or 5 7-8c over the low on Monday. The finish was within a fraction of the best prices with net gains of 7-8@2 1-4c.

Corn gained 5-8 to 3-4c. Oats advanced while rye was 7-8@1 1-4c higher.

Strength in foreign wheat markets anced while rye was 7-8@1 1-4c billion in the Liverpool 2 3-8@3 1-4d higher.

Strength in foreign wheat markets with Liverpool 2 3-8@3 1-4d higher at the close attracted much attention as did the reduction of 16,000,000 bushels in Broomhall's estimate on the Argentine exportable surplus to a total of 124,000,000 bushels, or only 1951 point and 1951 port sales.

Commission house sentiment underwent considerable change and there was fairly aggressive buying at times, day. No export business was reported at the seaboard.

A broadening in the commission house demand for corn, with a let-up in pressure and the strength in wheat caused a higher market. Selling against offers checked the up-turn. Little attention was paid to a small increase in offerings to arrive with 25,000 bushels November grades bought for January-February shipments at 74 3-8 to 75c. Spot basis was 1c lower to 2c higher as compared with May. Primary arrivals of 767-000 bushels compared with, 1,573,000 bushels last year. Houses with northwestern connections bought May oats while eastern interests took the July and sold May at 1-2c difference. Profit-taking checked the advance in tye, and it failed to fully reflect the bulge in wheat. Export sales of 100,000 bushels were reported at the seaboard. at the seaboard.

Medical and scientific authorities claim that radioactivity is the secret of the health benefits which for years have been found in the waters of Hot Springs, Arkansas, and other famous health centers.

The Radium Ore Revigator revitalizes any water with this same radio-activity. It permits you to drink radio-active water at all times.

Thus you enjoy the health value of more perfect elimination of poisons from the bodily organs. It aids in correcting indigestion, constipation, and the ills that too often accompany these troubles.

Tallulah Falls Trustees Meet Today at Woman's Club Honor Wedding

Every congressional district in Georgia will be represented today by district presidents of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs at the meeting of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school trustees which will be held at the Atlanta Women's club herical school trustees which will be held at the Atlanta Woman's club beginning at 4 p. m. and lasting until 10 o'clock, with an intermission at 6 for dinner. This assemblage will bring together women from all over Georgia who are outstanding leaders in federated club work. It is an annual session which is regarded with significance on account of reports of constructive activities and plans for the coming year's work. Mrs. John K. Ottley, president of the board, will preside.

The Tallulah Falls Industrial school is an outstanding endeavor which has Nathaniel Baxter, of Nashville, Tenn., attracted notice to Georgia club work from all over the country. The school Mrs. C. D. Layton is maintained in North Georgia for untain children who work their way through the school in a large number of cases. In many instances graduates of the school are employed as instructors in the institution. Basketry, weaving and other natural in-dustries of mountaineers have been exhibited and sold in many parts of the country and the proceeds used for the maintenance of the school. Dur-ing the comparatively brief existence of the institution it has grown in a manner considered amazing. Members of the board of trustees have been in-defatigable in their efforts to further the work of the school and they have received the backing and interest of the entire Federation of Women's

Local pride and sympathy in the extension of the institution is based on the fact that the children attenting it come from the purest Anglo-Saxon blood in America. The development that takes place in their lives while undergoing the training is considered remarkable. The response made to a better environment and been married here a few hours earlier. The bride was Miss Bessie Draper Mc-Keldin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh C. Palmer, of Washington, and the bridegroom is a son of a Eureka, Kans., banker.

Their destination, after a quiet ceremony at the Palmer home by Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenaut, was not disclosed. They planned, however, to return here to visit Mr. and Mrs. Palmer before going to Eureka to visit Tucker's father.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and wore a traveling costume of rose bedois and carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her half-sister, Miss Laura Palmer, who was also gowned in rose-color and carried pink roses. Tucker Gordon, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast for the party was served in the Palmer home, which was decorated with Easter lilies and ferns. Mrs. Palmer wore a gown of lavender with a hat to match and carried a corsage bouquet of orchids. Only members of the two families and close friends participated in the gathering.

The colleges stress fotball. They build quarter-million-dollar stadiums to hold the crowds. Alumni and students spend 60 minutes talking about sports to one minute talking about several times a professor's salary. Newspapers give columns to descriptions of a game and only paragraphs to a scientific discovery in the research laboratories which may mean much to the whole nation.

It is clear that colleges have made football a business. Why censor Red Grange for understanding it to be a business? WHO TURNED OFF THE LIGHTS AT THE COTILLION

Brilliant Musician Prepares To Return to Conservatory

In the multiplicity of things past, things present, and things to come, which are always teeming in one's consciousness, it is not an easy matter to give due recognition to—in their respective order—the things of most appeal!

And herein a hare's nest is unearthed!

"Most appeal"-a treacherous expression. Its dimensions equal X—the unknown!

How is one to get at a basis for such a calculation? How is one to estimate the rating of things of most appeal?

No standardization have we covering this point!
Obviously a matter of mentality in the individual.
But in truth are we always perfectly honest with ourselves in our outlook upon this same expression

How few of us honestly put this label upon the commodity in life which we should like to have bear it! And here the question of discrimination is often outranked by the one of urge, thus entailing a false light far too often! We would better say, therefore, one of greatest urge instead of strongest appeal.

Joke Turned to Account.

Have you heard of the practical joke which was played on the Cotillioners at the Druid Hills Golf club last Friday night?

The dance was moving right on with "joy un-confined"—no, I didn't use the customary old wag, this was not an ecasion of "joy unrefined," any way—when, mercy, the lights went out!

Instantly, pandemonium reigned supreme!

There wasn't any twilight left even. All of the lights were out!

What had happened?

That was what no one could find out.

Not even the club officials could place the trouble. They were running hither and thither testing wires, putting in new fuses and calling the light trouble department up town.

Man's ingenuity availed nothing.

The midnight blackness had come to pass. This I told you of recently. A consolidation of the powers that be in this field of youthful amusement. A redecorated hall which cost—oh, so much! Everything in the interior decorators' craft—excuse me, art—in the way of blue and gold which could be used without any violation of the real artistic effect, has been installed. A lovely spot they have succeeded in making and one entirely worthy of a new name and this is what I forgot to mention before!

This beautiful hall is in future to be called "The Merrimakers' hall." Don't spell it with a "y" and be sure you write or think the whole name without stopping. It is one word. Have you seen the word on the entrance door on the street?

HAPPINESS

Violet hecame almost grave.

"I am serious with happiness," she confided to Hargrave, in reply to remark of his. "I want to keep time standing still. I am afraid of it it. It is so beautiful and I am so happy." he told her "Indeed re-

"You must never lose your courage," he told her. "Indeed, remember that there is no need for you to. Perhaps I can guess what is in your mind. You need never go back to that old life unless you wish

"What am I to do then?" she demanded. "I can't live on charity—not even yours. I can't accept bounty for which I give nothing."
"My dear," he said, "I don't know whether you realize it but you are today rapidly becoming one of the most admired young women in Monte Carlo. There are half a dozen young men I know of at least who would give a great deal to be in my place."
"They do not interest me," she declared indifferently. "You know that."

"Not even Philip Gorse?"
"Of course, he's different," she confessed, "but you would not call him a young man. To me he seems older than you."
Hargrave smiled. After all, now he came to think of it, Philip Gorse only four years younger.

"Well, there are plenty of others."
"Yes," she admitted. "There is your friend, Lord Edward Pellingham. He asked me to lunch with him somewhere in the country today. He even suggested a chaperon when I refused."

"There you are," Hargrave pointed out. "Pellingham is supposed to be a critical young man. You will find before a month is passed that your future will solve itself readily enough."

A waiter intervened, bringing a carafe of county wine and the trout, and remained at their elbows. The conversation drifted to lighter sub-

"Never," she whispered, "have I been so near happiness."

Jects—the beauty of the view, the strange sight of the char-a-bancs winding their way round the distant hills. "Over there," he pointed out, "lies Grasse. We must call and buy you perfume on our way home."

"You spoil me," she told him, "with all the things which are beautiful to have and which I love having, but you starve me for the things

"My dear," he said, "I starve you then only in words and deeds. There is no one else of whom I am so fond."

Her eyes shone almost to mistiness.

"More, more, please," she begged. "You never talk to me like that and everyone else tries to, and when they do it sounds like a discord. And one word from you goes straight to my heart."

The scene around him seemed to fade away. There came to him a vivid realization of the whole intensity and purpose of life, here at a wayside restaurant, in this curious atmosphere of flowers and trees and music, half sweet, half banal. After all, it was what he had sought for, to taste all the best of life, this acute and wonderful sense of living as he had never lived before. But that it shoulld come to him in this fashion

'Will you please do something for me?" she asked suddenly. "I shouldn't be surprised," he replied, "if I didn't do nearly anything you could ask me. You are attacking me at a weak moment. I knew that the trout would be god, but I never dreamed of such delicious chicken and white wine."

"I won't try you too high," she promised. "You know, you don't seem to me to be in the least nervous, and yet I can't help thinking some times that you worky yourself about something which doesn't which times that you worry yourself about something which doesn't, which couldn't possibly, exist. I feel sure that doctor, of whom you spoke to me, was wrong. I want you to go to see some one else."

"Where? Here in Monte Carlo?" he asked.

"Why not?" she persisted. "I never saw any one look better than you do. You are just enough sunburned, your eyes are so clear and bright, you look healthier than any of the men I see about day by day.

The doctor in London who told you that you were threatened with an illness must be a stupid person."

"He dis a famous man," Hargrave assured her.

"The most famous men make mistakes. Promise?"

She leaned so close to him that their lips almost touched. Her eyes sparkled with mischief. Her lips persisted in their invitation. He leaned forward and touched them lightly.

"Good thing we're in France," he murmured.

"Do you promise?"
"After that, of course, I do."
"And in the meantime you won't worry?"

'Not a scrap.'

"And you won't try to find a husband for me?" 'That is another matter," he replied.

"To a certain extent I have drifted into the position of being your guardian. I have to consider my responsibilities seriously." "I am twenty-four years old," she remarked. "I adore having a guardian, but when I want a husband, I should like to find him for my-

"What independence!" he murmured. "Tell me-you are really a practical young woman in some things-what am I going to do about

"Let him stay on for a time," she answered promptly. "There is quite a nice little American girl here to whom he seems absolutely devoted. How fickle men are!" she sighed. "I am already forgotten. Mademoiselle Zelie has faded into the background. Just at present there exists in his mind only this charming American girl."

The meal drew towards its close. They lingered over their coffee and cigarettes until the place around them became almost deserted. The last of the visiting char-a-bancs had disappeared in a cloud of dust when Hargrave reluctantly called for his bill. Afterwards they passed through the deserted inner room on their way to the exit. She stopped and held him by the shoulders.

"I will be kissed," she insisted. "There is no one else whom I could let kiss me, so it must be you. Don't blame me, please," she murmured, as he stooped towards her. "It was that music—and after all -this is the country of happiness."

He held her in his arms for a moment, struggling to repress as much as he could the joy of it, the passion against which he fought, while her slim body strained against his. A footstep in the passage brought him a sort of aching relief. They walked arm in arm to the car.

"Never," she whispered, "have I been so near happiness."

The serenity of Hargrave's cynically devised months of epicurean pleasure was abruptly and completely broken. He was no longer able to indulge in self-deception. He had deliberately undertaken a pilgrimage to the pleasure ground of the world to enjoy with the whole zest of the was canable months which have firmly covided to the pleasure. which he was capable months which he was firmly convinced were to be his last, and he was suddenly face to face with an unexpected and unimaginable crisis. It had been, perhaps, he reflected, a coldly conceived plan of his, this deliberate reaching out for every instant gift which the world might have to offer.

He had better have remained like the philosopher in his garden to meditate upon the inevitable until its horrors lost all significance. He had chosen the other way and the last thing on earth which he had expected had happened. The pursuit of pleasure had suddenly become an ignominious travesty of life. The great gates at which he had knocked so many times to so little effect had been opened to disclose an undreamed of heaven. It was the Biblical truths of life, after all, which

Home-seekers find fulfillment of their dreams in Atlanta's Suburban Developments...

ATLANTA'S phenomenal business growth has been remarked upon the world round. Streets that were yesterday the quiet lanes in residence sections are today great business thoroughfares. Where the smooth sward of private lawns once greeted the passer-by, are now tiled vestibules of skyscrapers.

"What," some is asking, "became of the homes?"

Atlanta has made better provision for her homes than she has for her business districts. Long before the blue prints were made for the expanding downtown areas, engineers were driving stakes in the original forests that surround the city on every side, and in the shaded quiet of these beautiful woods the vast home sections were located. The great fire of 1917, which swept away several thousand Atlanta homes, did not result in the calamity which it would otherwise have proved for the reason that the new home sections already developed were ample to take care of the unexpected transition.

Atlanta does not suffer from the congestion of block upon block of connected houses, common to so many other cities, and it is this very fact which has caused visitors to marvel as they have looked upon the beauty and the charm of our residential sections. Trees, flowers, grass, sunshine, blowing winds—these are the boon of the residents of Atlanta. Every home has its little garden and every child has its fair chance at health and happiness.

Atlanta's residential districts have been praised by city planning experts from every section of the world. Fine homes and medium priced homes alike have been pointed out as ideal types of residences. Every attention has been given by skilled engineers to insure perfect drainage. Added to the well-planned streets and walks is the attention which the owners have given their houses and yards which combine to present beautiful homes in every instance.

The foresight of great city builders in going ahead of the march of the city's growth and selecting these ideal sites for new home sections is one of Atlanta's greatest assets. Druid Hills seems too beautiful to have been within the reach of any modern city. It is a veritable garden of the gods—a perfect setting for the dwelling place of people who love the beautiful in life. Morningside, one of Atlanta's newer home sections, was only yesterday a great forest where native trees stood in quiet splendor awaiting the coming of those who would build magnificent homes in their restful shade. Avondale was yesterday a great plantation, an original forest, a veritable Nature's playground. Today it is the Mecca of hundreds who have left the more crowded downtown districts for the quiet and restfulness of the open spaces.

Atlanta is fortunate in having these beautiful home sections, spacious and ample in every respect, and at the same time not too expensive to permit the people to live in them. It has been frequently remarked that Atlanta's magnificent home sections are within the reach of every industrious family. Of course, there are many imposing homes of the wealthier people of the city which are far beyond the reach of the average family, but all the advantages of space and fresh air and trees and sunshine are within the reach of every family of reasonable industry and ambition. And Atlanta expects to keep within the reach of the homeseeker these great values which neither money nor influence can create.

Atlanta has more trees within her limits than any city of like size in the South. Great stretches of parks and parkways provide an almost unbroken forest of native trees. Almost every street is bordered with appropriate trees and the larger subdivisions are conspicuous for their beautiful trees and shrubbery.

Druid Hills takes its name from the mas sive trees that bedeck the hills of that beautiful section It has been pointed out that within the limits of Druid Hills may be found more than ninety varieties of trees and shrubbery. From early spring to late autumn natural flowers are found blooming in Druid Hills. The air is fragrant with the blossoms of trees and vines that form a magnificent playground in this lovely community. Millions of dollars have been spent in Druid Hills and it is today the South's finest home section. Hundreds of acres are yet open for homes and it is believed that within the next two decades there will be built in Druid Hills the most beautiful homes anywhere to be found in the South.

Morningside is much younger than Druid Hills, but its development is marvelous. Sylvan Hills is another beautiful home section. Within the past twelve months more than $2,250,000 worth of lots have been sold in Morningside. Homes have been constructed to the value of $5,000,000. In $5 'van Hills more than $215,000 worth of lots have been sold within the past twelve months. Homes costing $500,000 have been erected in Sylvan Hills in the past year. There are 72 houses now under construction in Morningside and 24 in Sylvan Hills. These two new home sections will form one of the South's finest residential communities in the next few years.

Avondale Estates is less than one year old, and yet the owners of this beautiful subdivision have spent millions of dollars already in its development. Avondale Estates is laid out as a residential section following the pattern of early English ideals in architecture and landscaping. Already the effect is most beautiful. Every house bears the stamp of substantiality and every street and walkway is pleasing to the eye. Avondale Estates will embody every idea of permanence and beauty.

Ansley Park, Peachtree Road, Brookwood Hills, Pace's Ferry Road and many other distinctive home sections about Atlanta are illustrative of all the beauty and wholesomeness which Druid Hills and the other sections provide. In fact, from one side to the other Atlanta is a city of homes-a city where the first thought of its builders has been to offer the homeseeker every advantage and induce an increasing number of people to come here, not primarily for the seeking of great for-tunes, but to become a part of this friendly neighborhood of home-owners and home-lovers. In 1924 there were 59,136 private homes in Atlanta. It is estimated that there are 65,000 homes at this time. Atlanta invites the homeseeker to come here and join this delightful fellowship.

London, January 26.—(P)—Great Britain and Italy have come to a st-tlement on the Italian war debt. A ment are not known. It seems safe to assume, however, that the British tax-payer will be greatly disappointed, as it is understood that the terms Count Volpi obtained were even better than the terms granted to Italy by the United States.

It is believed that the main lines of the settlement provide for the payment of an annuity of £4,500,000 for 62 years, the annuities commencing forthwith, but possibly with some slight relaxation the first year. Italy renounces the interest on the £22,000,-000 in gold deposited with the Bank

The Italian mission will leave for Rome Thursday, having been in Lon-don for two weeks.

Masks play a prominent part on the program at Loew's Grand theater this week. The Constitution's Masked Players contest is on in full tilt. The feature picture is "The Masked Bride" with Mae Murray in the leading role. The pretty girl ushers wear masks and some of the comedians on the excellent vaudeville bill get a lot of fun out of the mask idea. The bill is strong throughout, three of the acts being in the headline class. Guy and Pearl Magley offer a pretty song and dance revue which is scoring big hits daily. "Shorty" McAlister, comedian, and Dick Lancaster are winning much favor with their work. Fulton and Parker appear in an amusing comedy skit. John Irving Fisher, famous composer, plays a pleasing program of popular song hits, while Dillon and Margerita open the bill with a novelty equilibristic turn. ed Players contest is on in full tilt.

In Press Wires

Interruptions were spasmodic but had been coming without cessation since shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. Veteran wire chiefs said the demonstrations penetrated farther into the south than had any other in the past 25 years.

The interruptions lasted from a few seconds to seven and eight minutes, during which the sounders ticked a jumble of flashes weird as spook messages from the unwelcome visitor.

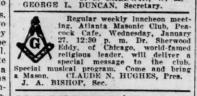

The Associated Press wires in New York city and north to Albany and The Associated Press wires in New York city and north to Albany and west to Toledo were constantly affected, while reports from other divisions said the same interruptions own measures.
